

March 12, 2025

Dear Crazy Hodophile Community,

I hope you have noticed the many changes since my 2023 update. Whether it was introducing new features or improving existing ones as promised in 2024, I have worked tirelessly to bring these changes to life. There are still many things in the pipeline, which will be introduced gradually when the time is right.

However, due to financial reasons, some updates like the website UI enhancements and gallery improvements are yet to be implemented. I have chosen not to connect the website to AdSense to ensure an uninterrupted reading experience for you, which means this platform is not a source of income. Another key reason for the slower execution of new ideas is that Tanya, the co-founder of Crazy Hodophile, has not been involved in any work for the past three years. Since then, I have been managing everything alone, from content creation to platform administration, which naturally takes time.

Despite these challenges, I was able to accomplish significant milestones in 2024. I launched the YouTube channel, revisited older blogs, published more new content than before, and welcomed over one lakh new viewers to the Crazy Hodophile website. I also focused on enhancing the website and working on several exciting developments. With your continuous support and love, I truly believe that Crazy Hodophile will reach even greater heights in the near future. There are many exciting plans for this year as well, most of which will unfold after mid-year.

I always strive to bring you at least one engaging blog every month, but sometimes things do not go as planned. My work has been affected lately, limiting the time I can dedicate to creating new content. This has also caused delays in releasing YouTube videos. Considering this, I have decided to take a break of three to five months after April to focus on website improvements, new blog content, and possibly video creation. Once I am ready, I will resume posting with fresh content, ensuring a smoother workflow. This way, you will have more to explore and I will be able to work more efficiently, which will be beneficial for both of us.

The journey of Crazy Hodophile continues, and this is both my commitment and promise to you. If you find the website content valuable, I would truly appreciate it if you could share it further. Your support is what keeps me motivated to create more content.

From the bottom of my heart, thank you to each and every one of you who connects with Crazy Hodophile through any medium.

I will wrap up my message here. Stay happy and keep enjoying the journey with Crazy Hodophile!

Warm Regards,
Vaibhav Sharma
Founder, Crazy Hodophile